

KamaGames Sponsors Irish Olympic Handball Association

Dublin, Ireland – March 23rd 2017, KamaGames, global developers and publishers of social games for mobile platforms, are pleased to announce their sponsorship of the Irish Olympic Handball Association (IOHA) for the forthcoming seasons.

This two year sponsorship agreement will see KamaGames take over as lead sponsor of the IOHA with the company's logo and branding being displayed on all men's, ladies and junior teams match day and training kit.

"We are excited to come on board as the main sponsors of the Irish Olympic Handball Association for the next two years," said Andrey Kuznetsov Managing Director at KamaGames. "Being based in Dublin ourselves, we are happy to have the opportunity to work with the national sporting team. The last few years has been seen Olympic Handball grow in popularity not only here in Ireland but also worldwide. We are extremely happy to support the sporting community, both amateur and professional across Ireland and feel that such an entertaining, exciting and passionate sport really does reflect our company's core values".

The Irish Olympic Handball Association's secretary Michael Moloney added "The Irish Olympic Handball Association is delighted to be announcing this sponsorship agreement with KamaGames. It is a very exciting time for the Irish Men's National team right now with the IHF Emerging Nations Trophy in June 2017 and the qualifiers for the World Championships happening soon after. The support from KamaGames will help us to not only prepare the team so that they can perform at their best but also support the development of the handball players of the future through our National Academy Projects too."
